CARR-191 Reuben Gist House
3436 Uniontown Road

The land records provide evidence that Reuben Gist constructed the building at 3436 Uniontown Road. In 1813, Gist purchased the property for $500, a price that indicates there were probably improvements on the lot when he bought it. The October 10, 1813 edition of The Engine of Liberty carries an advertisement for Reuben Gist's store offering stoves, hollowware, and other ironware. By December 1813, Gist was running this ad: "For Sale, house and lot in center of Uniontown, brick house unfinished." In January 1814, John Kurtz bought the property for $740. Kurtz sold the property to John Reichnecker for $1000 in 1817. Jacob Christ, the cabinetmaker, bought the property in March 1818, and ran the following advertisement in the new newspaper, The Star of Federalism: "Jacob Christ, Cabinet Maker, has moved from his old stand to the center of Uniontown next door to Peter Senseney's store." The property remained in the ownership of the Christ family until 1874, except for the years 1836-1838 when it was owned by Samuel and Jacob Myers. The building has interesting ornamentation in the applied wood cut-out designs over the second story windows. This ornamentation and other design features indicate that it was probably built as a commercial structure and served such a role into the late nineteenth century. During the early twentieth century, Jesse Billmyer was a Justice of the Peace and kept his office in the addition on the west side of the building.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Dickenshurst House has a combination of late Victorian and Greek Revival characteristics, is of brick English bond construction, and has only one rake to the roof - sloping to the N (or rear).

The facade (S. elevation) is three "bays" at the 1st level, viz. D, W, W. and three equally spaced windows at the second. The ground level windows are very tall and possess  $2\frac{1}{2}$  sash. The three windows of the second level are also  $2\frac{1}{2}$  sash but somewhat smaller in dimensions. Above the second level windows is a crown moulding - boxed with Victorian bracket undermouldings.

To the SW corner is a small 1 story 2 bay (W, D.) wing which apparently seems to have originally served as a small shop of some sort. The eave or crown moulding matches that of the main block.

A rear extension (N) of the main block is of clapboard - is enclosed on the 1st level with an open porch above -

A 1 story porch with square posts extends from the extreme SW corner to the SE corner.
